Using NHSBot

Click this icon to minimise NHSBot.

Click the message icon button to open NHSBot.

Type your question here. Press "enter" on the keyboard to send it.

You can also send the question by clicking the send icon button.
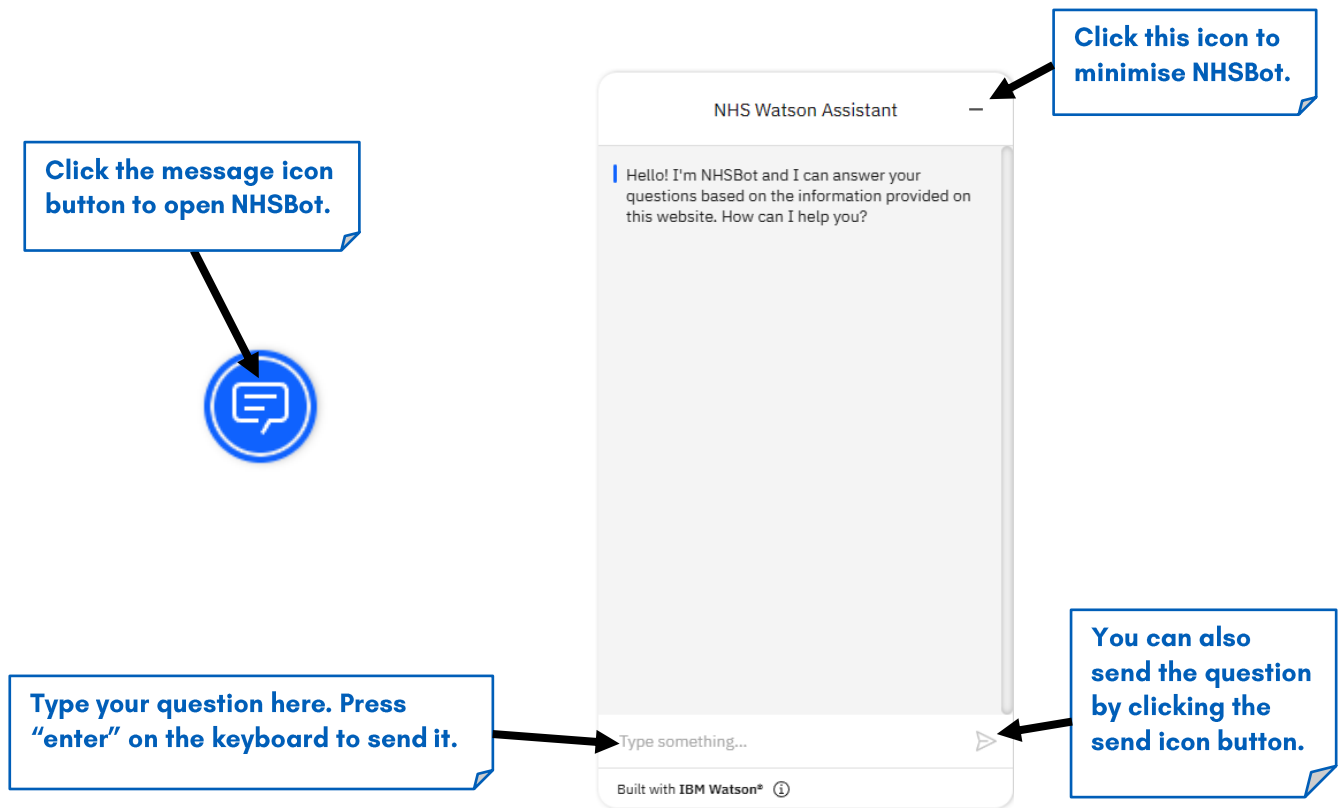

Users can become familiar with NHSBot's chat interface through practice because it is user-friendly and easily accessible. These are three simple steps to use NHSBot:

1. After you click the message icon button, NHSBot sends you a greeting message.
2. You can start type your question at the text bar. To send it, you can either press "enter" on the keyboard or click the send icon button.
3. NHSBot will provide you an appropriate answer after receiving the question.

Note

NHSBot can only answer your questions based on the information from your website. For instance, if you ask a general question like "Where does a tiger live?", it will not provide you with an appropriate answer, because there is no information about that on the website. You can ask specific questions like "What is the address of the hospital?", "What is aspirin?", "How to eat smart and healthy", "Tell me the phone number of this hospital", because that information is on the website.

Have a pleasant time using NHSBot!
